Your first question may be, "How do we know the Promise of the land of Canaan was given to Avraham 430 years prior to Mt. Sinai?"

Beginning in B' resheet (Genesis) 12:1,7 Avraham is Promised the land of Canaan as a possession to him and his descendants. In Ma'aseh (Acts) 7:2,3 it is stated that this Promise was given to Avraham prior to his departure to Haran. B'resheet (Genesis) 12:4 states that Avraham left Haran at age 75; by this we can see that he was given the Promise sometime before age 75. Galatians 3:16,17 states that this Promise was given 430 years prior to the exodus from Egypt.

B'resheet 15:13 states that Avraham's descendants would live as foreigners for 400 years in land that is not their own. Avraham's first descendant through Sarah was Yit'zak (Isaac). B'resheet (Genesis) 21:5 states that Avraham was 100 years old when Yit'zak (Isaac) was born.

This leaves a difference of 30 years between the time that Avraham received the Promise to the time that Yit'zak (Isaac) was born in that Promised land (430 – 400 = 30). Avraham was 100 years old when Yit'zak was born, causing Avraham to be 70 years old when given the Promise of the land of Canaan (100 – 30 = 70).

Your next question may be, “Why only 210 years in Egypt? I thought Israel was in Egypt for 400 years?”

Various translations certainly give this impression, and Time Line 2 herein provides a detailed overview of why they were in Egypt for only about 210 years; but to provide an abbreviated answer here, B'resheet (Genesis) 15:13-16 states that Avraham's descendants would become enslaved and that in the 4th generation after entering that country (Egypt) they would return to the Promised land.

The 1st generation to go into Egypt was Jacob, the 2nd Levi, the 3rd Kohath, and the 4th Amram who came out of Egypt under Moshe (Moses).

Jacob, Levi, and Kohath all entered Egypt together. From the traditional 400 year view this means that from Kohath, to Amram, to Moses a 400 year span had to take place. But even if Kohath entered Egypt at age 1, and then begat Amram in the year that he died at age 133, and then proceeded to beget Moses in the year that he died at age 137, and then added the 80 years of Moses to that to bring it to the time that Moses led Israel out of Egypt, you would still have covered only 349 years, and would need men to beget sons after age 130 at a time when Avraham, who lived to be 175 years, was considered too old to have sons at even age 100.

However, with the 210 year position reflected in the chronological record of Scripture, to reach the 210 year span from Kohath to the exodus, Kohath and Amram only need be an average age of 66 when begetting the next generation – a reasonable age at a time when men were living to be an average of 138.

Traditional 400 Year View	Age When Entering Egypt	Age When Begetting Next Generation or at Time of Exodus	Age at Time of Death
Kohath	1	133	133
Amram	--	137	137
Moses/Exodus	--	80	--
Total:		349	(350 – Kohath's 1 year)

210 Year Chronology	Age When Entering Egypt	Age When Begetting Next Generation or at Time of Exodus	Age at Time of Death
Kohath	2	~91	133
Amram	--	~41	137
Moses/Exodus	--	80	--
Total:		210	(212 – Kohath's 2 years)

So though it is true that they were foreigners in countries not their own for 400 years (beginning with Isaac who was born in a foreign land 30 years after the promise of Canaan given to Avraham), Avraham's descendants were not oppressed, afflicted, or enslaved that whole time; but only often oppressed and afflicted in those countries, and then eventually and ultimately enslaved later. In all however, their actual time spent in Egypt was only about 210 years; and the time spent enslaved only about 80 years.

The time line above lays out the chronology of events from the time Avraham was given the “Promise” to the time they left Egypt 430 years later (and the time of Avraham's first descendent through Sarah (Isaac), to the time they left Egypt 400 years later). The backbone of this timeline is founded upon the known ages of Isaac, Jacob, Joseph. This backbone of chronological events is identified in the [gold] rows.
